

SUMMARY

Like technology, standards are continuously evolving. Additional transmission parameters will be specified for future high speed applications. One should be reminded that standards compliance provides a minimum level of assurance. Systems that provide a measurement margin greater than the present-day standards should survive the long-term demands that will be placed upon them.

NORDX/CDT believes in this philosophy, and accordingly has designed a system that is certified to support present and future applications.

Paul Kish

*Product Manager, Copper Cables, IBDN.
Chairman, TIA Committee Commercial Building
Telecommunications Cabling Standard.*